The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, MAY 18TH, 1911.

The news from Canton during the past few days affords evidence that the authorities are far from satisfied that there is no danger of a recurrence of the revolutionary trouble which broke out in that city a few weeks ago; and if any further proof of the uneasy state of feeling which prevails in Canton were needed, it may be found in the stagnant state of business. Our correspondent at Canton writes of additional troops being brought to the City from the neighbouring province of Kwangsi. It is understood that there are now about 35,000 troops under arms in and around Canton and that other troops are expected from Hupeh. While this augmentation of the Garrison is taking place it seems very extraordinary that the authorities should permit several hundred time-expired soldiers to return to their native villages. According to a recent report these men were very desirous of prolonging their term of service. But if their loyalty to the Throne can be counted upon their presence in the country districts may be useful at the present time in checking those developments which must inevitably follow the preaching of revolution, so industriously carried on in all parts of the province of Kwangtung. A missionary in a district of Kwangtung far removed from the capital city writes: "I would not dare to report for publication the outspoken and unrestrained expressions of disloyalty I constantly hear. A common sentiment is that it is the duty of the Chinese to exterminate the Manchus." The problem the authorities have to solve is: How is this feeling which is so wide-spread in the Two Kwangs, and is extending to many other provinces of the Empire, to be converted into one of contentment and satisfaction with the ruling dynasty? The menace of a great array of troops will doubtless serve to keep down the effervescence, just as a tightly-fitting cork keeps soda-water from bubbling, but something more than the tyranny of force is needed to change the mental outlook of the people. We have seen no statement of the grievances of the malcontents, who appear to confine themselves to expressing a blind hatred of the ruling dynasty. This is the theme of all their diatribes spoken and written. If only the people would stop to consider what would profit them if the dynasty were overthrown there would probably be much less enthusiasm for "the cause." The place-hunters would, of course, obtain their rewards, but the last state of the people as a whole would in all likelihood be worse than the first. One would have thought that much of the old hostility to the Manchu dynasty had disappeared under the political developments of recent years. By peaceful political agitation the power of government is rapidly passing into the hands of the people, and whatever grievances they have, it is already largely in their power to ameliorate or remove. The Throne dare not resist the people's will when it is forcibly expressed by their representatives in the newly-created Provincial and National Councils. Already the Throne has yielded to the desires of the elected representatives of the people on more than one occasion, and with the early establishment of a Parliament in Peking we ought to hear less and less of the wild talk of revolution. The Utopia of the Reformers cannot be created in China in a single day or a decade, and it will never be reached by a bloody revolution, which can but serve to check political progress along the lines mapped out in the scheme of Constitutional Government which the Government is introducing under the steady pressure of an enlightened public opinion. Nor in these days when so many unifying influences are at work throughout the Empire is it possible to believe in the success of a revolution so long as the fidelity of the troops to the Throne is secured by regular pay and good treatment. Conditions in China to-day are very different from what they were in the days of the Tai-ping rebellion, and we believe that terrible episode in the history of China is never likely to be repeated on the same scale. There can be no doubt, however, that a powerful organisation is in existence determinedly bent upon raising the standard of rebellion in the southern metropolis of the Empire—but this can only result in the creation of a military despotism in the province which will endure so long as there exists the least sign of sympathy with the revolutionary movement.

A motor car accident took place at Shaukiwan Road on Tuesday night, when a Chinaman was run over and slightly injured.

The taking of the census of the Colony began yesterday, the police distributing the necessary forms which residents are required to fill in.

A fine of $45 was yesterday imposed by Mr. Wood at the Magistracy on a man who had been found with 60 lbs of opium in his possession. On Tuesday a Chinaman jumped from the balcony at the Registrar-General's office into Battery Path. As he was apparently injured he was removed to the hospital, but on the way he commenced blowing a police whistle which he had in his possession. The inference is that the man was not in his right mind.

A Chinaman from a Des Voeux Road shop appeared before the Magistrate yesterday charged with having in his possession 400 chests of tea to which a false trade mark had been applied. Mr. Lewis, of Messrs. Dacon, Looker & Deacon, appeared to prosecute, and Mr. Reader (Harris) defended. The case was remanded, bail being fixed at $5,000.

The Hon. Treasurer of the Alice Memorial and Affiliated Hospitals begs to acknowledge with thanks the following donations to the funds of the Hospitals:—

Wilkinson, Heywood & Clark	... $25
H. H. J. Gompertz, Esq.	... 10
Lefferts Knox, Esq.	... 10
Vicaria & Co.	... 10
M. H. Elias, Esq.	... 5

Captain J. W. Saunders has appealed to the United States Treasury Department from the fine of $15,000 imposed upon him because while he was in command of the Korea last January nearly $50,000 worth of contraband smoking opium was seized by customs inspectors on board the vessel. There is what the American papers describe as an antique law passed by Congress in 1799 which provides that masters of vessels carrying goods not entered on the manifest are held responsible and liable to a heavy fine. Under this law Collector Stratton at San Francisco reported Captain Saunders to the department and the fine was imposed shortly afterward, but that fact was kept from publicity by the customs officials.

THE BRITISH BUDGET.

NO FRESH TAXATION.

LONDON, May 17th.

Mr. Lloyd George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, presented the Budget to the House of Commons yesterday. It provided for no fresh taxation. The combined surpluses of 1909-10 and 1910-11 amounted to £5,607,000.

The revenue from sugar and tea alone fell below the estimate.

It was announced that the payment of members at the rate of £400 per annum, excluding Ministers, would cost a quarter of a million.

The estimated surplus was £482,000.

The Budget of 1909-10 produced an enormous revenue which was still growing.

The proposed alterations on the cocoa and chocolate duties, removing their protective character, would involve a loss of £45,000.

THE BRITISH TEA DUTY.

THE UNREST AT CANTON.

A GARRISON OF 35,000 TROOPS.

Our Canton correspondent writes:—

Yesterday a body of several hundred time-expired troops left the city. They marched from barracks to the Government wharf headed by a brass band. On the wharf Admiral Li delivered a speech in which he exhorted the service they had rendered to their country. There were big crowds assembled all along the way, and the men, before they boarded the junks to take them to their native villages, had a good send-off. The troops from Kwong Sai have arrived and the Viceroy together with the chief of the provincial officials went to the Government wharf to meet them. A cordial welcome was extended by His Excellency to the commander, General Lung. On the day after their arrival a grand feast was held in honour of the new General's arrival and most of the provincial officers were present. After the banquet the Viceroy made a speech and stated that his personal bodyguard would be drawn from the Kwong Sai troops, and that as soon as other expected reinforcements arrived he intended to start an active campaign against the bandits that infest the country districts. There is said to be about 35,000 men under arms in and around Canton just now, and other troops are expected from Hupeh before long.

GUARDING THE VICEROY.

The Viceroy is now living on the top floor of the Military Bureau, and special measures are being taken to secure the safety of his person.

Guards are stationed before every door, and no one is allowed to enter or leave the Bureau without being searched. All persons attached to the Viceroy's suite are distinguished by a badge, and no one without this badge is allowed to pass the cordon of guards until he has been strictly interrogated. There is a great deal of uneasiness in the city to-day, for it is feared that the rebels are planning another revolt. The Government schools are still closed, and many of the shops and especially the banks have not opened. Increased patrols are guarding the streets, and men with fixed bayonets are on guard at all police-station doors. The setting Educational Commission has issued a circular to all students in the city warning them of the danger of being led by the wily words of the rebels into joining their ranks. Special notices have been given to those in charge of vessels trading between here and Hongkong and other places ordering them not to allow speeches to be made to passengers while on the voyage. Ship-masters are advised to hand over these speech-makers to the authorities on reaching port.

A STRANGE BUMOUR.

The number of rumours going the rounds in this city is incredible, and it is hard to understand that national beings put credence in them. Yesterday I reported that orders had been given to the Press Association to discredit the story that China is to be divided up among European Powers, and now to-day a fresh story has been started to take the place of the latest scare. It is now said that a certain European Power is in league with the revolutionaries and has promised them the aid of a squadron of warships which is to make a descent on the Chinese coast in a few days' time. The story also goes on to say that all the arms and ammunition of the revolutionaries have been supplied by this Power, and, further, should the rebels succeed in overthrowing the Government this Power is to receive certain territories in return for services rendered. Where such stories originate is a mystery, but it would appear that they are deliberately invented and put into circulation by certain persons who would profit by anti-dynastic or anti-foreign risings that might occur through these rumours gaining credence. The native Press here is also very young and its editors more or less inexperienced, and articles are published in which such ridiculous rumours are treated as though they were absolute truth. Newspapers are very widely read here and the publication of such fabrications does a great deal to excite the people.

A BIG FIND OF DYNAMITE.

Still another big haul of dynamite has been made by the police. In Chong Hoi Street there is a house which has been closed for a long time. The police became suspicious of this building and forced an entry. The house appeared to be well furnished and in good order, but when a search was made ninety large tins of dynamite were found under the beds. This was at once taken charge of, and then it was noticed that one of the flag-stones in the yard was loose. It was removed and a cavity revealed which contained over 100 pounds of dynamite. The police are now searching for the owners of the house.

SETTING AN EXAMPLE.

I reported last week that the Viceroy is very angry because so many families have left the city. He was exhorting with some of his officers for having sent their families away, and told them they should be brought back without delay. The officers retorted with much justice that the Viceroy had sent his father and family on board a cruiser for safety, and suggested if he desired to restore confidence he should bring his own family back first. This struck His Excellency as being reasonable, and forthwith his father and family were brought back to the City. It is said that an order is soon to be issued prohibiting families from leaving for Hongkong and Macao. From what I hear the Viceroy does not appear to have very much love for Hongkong, which he seems to look upon as a secure hiding place for revolutionaries.

Two officers, Tsootsi Ai Hon and Captain Ng King Wing, have been sent to the Colony to confer with the British Authorities on this subject.

HOW TO BECOME HEALTHY AND STRONG.

"Plant your feet firmly and squarely on the ground, throw back your shoulders, fold your arms, and swear in most emphatic terms that you are strong, healthy and well. Do this for a few minutes every evening, and even if this is not how you actually feel, maintain by your physical and mental attitude that it is your condition, and you will soon find that it becomes so, and that you are not really telling lies."

This was the advice given by Dr. J. Stenson Hooker in a recent lecture on "Posturing and Posing for Health" at the Carlton Hall in connection with the opening of the Simple Life Conference and Exhibition.

"It is wonderful to what extent our state of health can be altered in this way," Dr. Hooker added.

"It stirs up the currents of feeling which act on the nerves; these act on the blood vessels, and thus the whole system is improved, and we become different beings."

"Another invaluable exercise is to walk up and down the room for a quarter of an hour or so, with a firm step. Do not be afraid of making a little noise."

With regard to posture in general, Dr. Hooker dwelt on the fact that the majority of persons assumed a wrong attitude of body from the moment they got out of bed in the morning.

"Most men and many women," he said, "begin the day by shuffling across the room. When they are dressed they slouch down square to a square meal, and sit down square to a square meal, with bent shoulders and twisted legs. Twisted legs and feet are signs of weak mental condition."

"Why not come down straight and erect, and sit down square to a square meal, and then go to office in a brisk, determined fashion, and not as if one were going to a funeral?"

"How to rest is another art to be acquired.

Every muscle and every nerve must be completely relaxed, and your body must feel like a piece of washed-out rag."

The opening of the exhibition was performed by Sir John Kirk, who declared that although not a vegetarian or a fruitarian, or any other kind of "arian," he believed that every movement which made for simpler living was to be commended as contributory to the national welfare in this age of luxury and self-indulgence.

NEW BABACKS.

Still more is to be done to add to the strength of Canton's defences. Admiral Li has obtained a sum of Tls. 3,000 for the purpose of buying up a row of houses in Tin Ping Street, which are to be converted without delay into barracks for troops and the Admiral's guards. This street is near the Admiral's temporary residence, and the men will be within easy call in case of an emergency.

HOUSE SEARCHING.

The prospect of a house to house search in the western suburbs does not seem very pleasant to the many bankers who have their offices there and who seem to have but a poor opinion of the honesty of the police. A meeting of the Bankers' Guild was lately held to protest against the measure, and it was agreed that the search be not tolerated unless the Taotai of Police agreed to the following proposals: (1) Before a bank is searched the police must inform the Bankers' Guild. (2) The search party is to be accompanied by representatives of the Guild. (3) That every policeman in the search party be himself searched before being admitted to the bank and searched again when he comes out. It is said that these demands have been agreed to, as to offend the Bankers' Guild is about the last thing the officials wish to do at the present juncture.

SUPREME COURT.

Wednesday, May 17th.

IN ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR SIR FRANCIS PIGOTT
(CHIEF JUSTICE).

INTERESTING SHIPPING CASE.

The hearing was continued of the special case submitted for the opinion of the Court in the arbitration between the Java China Japan Lijn and Olof Wijk & Co. China Agencies, Ltd. The arbitrators, Messrs. R. Shaw and D. W. Craddock with Mr. G. H. Medhurst as umpire, made certain findings of fact. The case to be argued was upon questions of law arising out of the charter party.

Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C., instructed by Mr. J. Scott Harston, appeared for the Java China Japan Lijn and Mr. Eldon Potter, instructed by Mr. G. A. Hastings, appeared for Messrs. Olof Wijk & Co. China Agencies, Ltd.

Mr. Potter, dealing with the right of the charterers to terminate the contract, referred his Lordship to a letter of 7th February from the charterers to the owners. In that letter they set out first of all that the Victoria was not insurable as a first class risk and stated that in those circumstances they should feel obliged if the owners would have to pay the extra premium.

In the terms of the charter party the steamer must be a first class risk in local insurance offices. The ship charter said that the boat was to be a good risk in local insurance offices, but the time-charter, with which they were concerned, said the ship must be a first class risk in local insurance offices. In the letter referred to Mr. Bischoff clearly set out his position under the time-charter. He said the vessel ought to be a first class risk, and she was not, and asked the owners to pay the extra premium. There was no suggestion that he would terminate the time-charter, but a direct suggestion that he would continue to be bound by it. That suggestion was found even in stronger form in the charterers' letter of February 8th. In the meantime there must have been some conversation between Mr. Bischoff and Mr. Nielson with regard to the sale of the boat, for it was a fortnight later that the charterers' solicitors wrote to the owners saying that they intended to terminate the contract. The letter referred to, absolutely put the charterers out of court on the point as to whether they were entitled to terminate or not. It was laid down that the charterer might refuse to load a ship if she was not of the prescribed class, so that prior to taking over the charterers could have refused to load the ship if she was not of the prescribed class. It was for persons claiming special damages to prove their case, and to prove that the special damages were the result of the conduct of the person from whom they were claiming. It was clear that the charterers had not proved their special damages by simply putting in a receipt for $770, the amount claimed. It was obvious that they intended to prove by this receipt that the Victoria was not a first class risk, but they were bound by the law of evidence, and there was nothing in the receipt to show that the Victoria was not a first class risk. Another reason why this sum was not recoverable as damages was because it had not been proved that the charterers were under any legal liability to make this payment. Assuming he was right in his contention that the charterers could not terminate the charter party, the owners were entitled to damages for breach of the charter party. It was impossible for the owners to prove damage while the charter party was still in existence, and while they were paid month-by-month for their boat. Damage accrued after the charter party terminated. One of the items would be loss of hire of the boat up to the present moment. In cases such as this a jury is told that they can award prospective damages.

His Lordship—I cannot give any damages.
Mr. Potter—You can, with great respect.

His Lordship—Where is the power?

Mr. Potter—in the special case...

His Lordship—How can I award damages? I have no facts before me.

Mr. Potter—You have the only facts that can be proved in such a case as this, namely, that the boat was hired for $5,000 a month, to be continued for twelve months; that the charterers had the boat until April; and that there are seven months still to run. Your Lordship can give us what you think fair compensation for possible damages in the future. One way of doing it would be for Messrs. Olof Wijk & Co. to keep an account, and we could be awarded the difference between the amount earned and the charter money.

Mr. Pollock submitted that question 2, with regard to insurance owing to the age of the Victoria, ought never to have been put to the arbitrators as a matter of evidence.

His Lordship, after being referred to numerous authorities in support of Counsel's contentions, reserved his decision.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR MR. H. J. GOMPERTZ (PUIENEY JUDG).

A QUESTION OF QUALITY.

William Shaw & Co. brought action against the Ling Loong firm to recover $167.20, damages for breach of contract for the sale and purchase of one case of broad cloth.

Mr. Leo d'Almada e Castro appeared for the plaintiffs, and defendants were represented by Mr. J. H. Gardner.

Mr. Almada informed the Court that on January 28th last year the defendants entered into a contract with the plaintiffs for the purchase of one case of broad cloth. The goods arrived on August 23rd, 1910, and due notice of arrival was given to the defendants. In the contract two months' notice was given as time for taking delivery. The two months having expired, plaintiffs pressed the defendants to take delivery of the goods, but defendants replied that they could not, as the cloth was not up to sample.

His Lordship—Was this a contract for sale by sample?

Mr. Gardner—Yes, and there is a stipulation on the back of the contract that should the goods not be of the same quality as the sample the buyer has no claim, but can cancel the contract.

Mr. Almada—Another stipulation says that the buyers will be considered to have approved and accepted the goods unless they give notice within one week, and no such notice was given.

His Lordship—I suppose the plaintiff firm are commission agents?

Mr. Almada—Yes, and these goods were ordered by defendants from plaintiffs. The question your Lordship has to consider is whether the goods were, or were not, according to sample.

Evidence was called and the hearing adjourned.

OVERDRAFTS.

The Kwok Un Kee sued Fong Tan to recover $165.97, money overdrawn by the defendant from the plaintiffs.

Mr. Otto Kong Sing represented the plaintiffs, and Mr. H. K. Holmes appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Kong Sing, in opening, said the defendant was employed by the plaintiff firm for some considerable time. Plaintiffs' particulars of claim dated from 1905, from which year the defendant had been overdriving. He (Mr. Kong Sing) had had notice of a special defense, the Statute of Limitations, but he submitted that these monies, which were overdrawn from 1905 to 1909, were not statute barred, as it was a continuing liability.

His Lordship—Were there any payments made setting off an account?

Mr. Kong Sing—No, but these monies have been drawn from 1905 till 1909. Two claims, one for 1908 and the other for 1909, come within time. They are for $35.22 and $3.17.

Mr. Holmes—I think there is only one cash payment received alleged. That is in respect of 1902. I may say I do not admit these figures.

His Lordship—The particulars of claim show salary overdrawn $40.20, and then "drawn $177.51."

Mr. Kong Sing—The amount of salary drawn for 1905 was $177.51, while his salary for that year was $144, leaving an amount of $33.51 overdrawn. In the first year $40.20 was overdrawn.

After hearing evidence his Lordship reserved his decision until Friday.

THE FOLLIES.

After several disappointments and delays, the Follies were last night able to open another all too short season in Hongkong. There was a large and appreciative audience, who enjoyed to the full the excellent entertainment provided. The several specialties of the various artists were encored, Mr. Clifton Yates being again in great demand, as also Miss Redford. The beverage quartettes proved very delightful, and the potted play "The Christian," and the burlesque of a music hall were very amusing.

FAILURE OF THE £100,000 GAIETY RESTAURANT.

Built only six years ago, at a huge cost, the Gaiety Restaurant (London) has failed to meet with the support which was anticipated, and it will now be given to the ratepayers of London. The Gaiety Restaurant—which has no connection with the Gaiety Theatre adjoining—was opened in May, 1905. It is an imposing building with handsome frontages of Portland stone on the Strand and Aldwych. Inside, besides the restaurant on the ground floor and the grill-rooms underneath, there are five large banqueting rooms, a number of private dining-rooms, and on the upper floors, residential suites. A feature of the building is the Grand Byzantine Masonic Temple, with vaulted ceiling and columns of Sienna marble. The Georgian Hall will easily seat 250 guests and is convertible into a ball-room. The private dining-rooms have names recalling old Gaiety memories—Fred Leslie, Kate Vaughan, and Nellie Farren rooms. The Improvements Committee, in their report to the Council, state that the Gaiety Restaurant Company, Limited, were granted a lease of the site, having an area of about 10,450 square feet, of the present building in the Strand for 50 years from March 25, 1905, at a rent of £2,894 5s. 6d. a year. The cost of the building is stated to have exceeded £100,000. The company are in liquidation, the furniture and effects at the restaurant have been sold by auction, and it is proposed to close the premises. The Law Debenture Corporation, Limited, the mortgagors, state that they are not prepared to perform the covenants contained in the lease, but that they would be willing to join with the liquidator in surrendering the lease at the expense of the Council. In these circumstances there appears to be no alternative but for the Council to re-enter and take possession. The committee have arranged, as a matter of urgency and pending further consideration, for the license to be preserved. The committee recommends that the surrender be accepted. The position is a singular one, for although the handsome building is to become the property of the ratepayers, the difficulty will be to utilize it for any other purpose without spending large sums on it, and recent events have shown that in this particular neighbourhood such an establishment is not what is required. This is due to the fact that the tide of fashion is going Westward, and that the theatregoers who were expected to patronise the restaurant for dinners and suppers prefer to go in that direction. On this account the Gaiety Restaurant has been stranded. It may be suggested that the mortgagees might sell the 49 years' lease of the premises for what it would fetch, which would be much reduced as salvage. But it is replied that who ever bought it would have to carry on a business which is proved not to pay on that scale, and would have to pay a ground rent of nearly £6,000 a year. That being so, the ratepayers are going to be presented with what looks like £100,000 but which is probably a white elephant. Nevertheless, it seems extraordinary that on such a site in London there should be no profitable use for such a building. The L.C.C. will no doubt try to let it, but it is doubtful who'll have, owing to the difficulty of adapting it, they will get as much as their ground-rent out of it.

PARIS LETTER.

[WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE "HONGKONG DAILY PRESS"]

Paris, April 21st.

THE CHAMPAGNE RIOTS.

The wine-riots are not over by a long way, as some might erroneously conclude from the present lull in the operations. A short truce prevailed during the Easter holidays. There is no telling when another volcanic eruption may take place. The only thing which is keeping the vine-growers quiet for the time being is the large number of soldiers present everywhere. The display of force has had the desired effect, that of owing down the rioters, who, it is alleged, have done quite enough mischief. It is not, however, just to lay all the blame for what has happened upon the shoulders of the vine-growers; behind them were Anarchists, who, getting mad with drink, went about doing as much damage as they could to everybody and to everybody's premises. In some cases they paid dearly for their rashness, as they got suffocated in the collars which they had previously loosened but were too drunk to escape from when their comrades ignorant of their whereabouts set fire to the premises. Wholesalers arrests, including ring-leaders, have been effected. This, however, is not expected to bring the rioters to their senses, who are only waiting for the soldiers to withdraw, or their number reduced in strength, to resume their diabolical work of the past weeks. In consequence of the recent disturbances a number of the most prominent wine shippers have decided to leave the district altogether; this is dealing a most cruel, not to say fatal, blow to the French champagne industry, or the little that remains of it by this time.

Public opinion is very angry at the fact that the Government can do so little to restore order permanently—temporary order such as at present exists is useless. The Government finds itself, as already remarked, between the devil and the deep sea, between the fury of the Marne and the mania of the Aube. Whatever the Government does must provoke trouble in one district or the other. As most people are aware, the present grave trouble began when the Government decreed that the district of the Aube, which adjoins the Marne district, should not have the right to call its wine champagne. Then the vine-growers of the Aube grew beside themselves with fury, and the Aube district was given over to riot, while the people of the Marne rejoiced. In reply to the protestations of the delegates from the Aube, the Government, thinking to restore harmony, promised that the Aube wine should be champagne—or rather classified champagne. This did not appease the Aube, and further protest was made. The Government next promised that the whole question should be submitted, without any official recommendation, to the Council of State. The result of this only caused protests and rioting on a fiercer scale than ever to be transferred from the Aube to the Marne. The latter important department promises to be in a state of insurrection and siege for many weeks to come—hence the imperative necessity of maintaining a large number of soldiers on the spot. One only hopes that the present insurrection in France will be quelled without serious bloodshed. All depends on the way the Government will continue to act. A strong hand is needed and only a firm decision and vigour will restore peace with honour, if such can at all be attained sooner or later.

ART BEQUEST.

The art world is overjoyed at the Louvre having been enriched to the extent of £300,000 by the death of Count Isaac de Camondo, who bequeathed his magnificent art collection to the National Museum on the condition that for a period of 50 years the collection shall be placed in a special hall bearing the Count's name. Deceased also left a sum of £4,000 to cover cost of installation. Had the Louvre refused the legacy, the Municipal Art Gallery would have become the lucky possessor. The Count's collection of modern French artists—Manet, Degas, Sisley, Claude Monet, etc.—is probably the best in existence, while his rich and rare collection of Japanese prints and primitive Japanese sculpture will unmistakably prove a noteworthy addition to the treasures of the Louvre. It is said that for one of his prized possessions—a splendid white marble group by Falconet—the late Count de Camondo once refused £400,000, offered to him by an American collector, on the plea that he could not bear the thought of its leaving the country. Who was Count Camondo? A wealthy banker, a keen and discriminating collector, and an excellent musician. One of his works, "The Clown," was successfully performed a few years ago at the Opera Comique. It is related that after hearing Wagner's "Parish" in 1882, the Count composed no more music for 15 years.

THE LEAGUE OF FATHERS.

The "League of Fathers"—whose captain was arrested a fortnight ago for disturbing the peace—has just published the following interesting statistics. The League defines a "big family" as one of at least four children under 13 years of age. We are told that there are 424,639 big families in France, with 1,712,836 children, the average being 6·1 big families per 1,000 inhabitants of the population. Detailed figures show that there are 280,458 families with four children, 93,544 with five, 36,358 with six, 7,545 with seven, 4,473 with eight, 1,481 with nine, and 780 with ten or more.

RENTS IN PARIS.

In these days when the cost of living is so dear and wages so low, is it right for landlords—as is the case in Paris—to exact three months' rent in advance? While to some tenants this is nothing, on the other hand, hard-working and struggling locataires or tenants with families often find this more than they can comply with. In a certain part of Paris last week the occupants of two large tenement buildings decided to protest against the proposed raising of their rents by declining to pay the quarter falling due on 15th April. Everyone pays rents quarterly in France. The tenants who have gone on strike number 85, and the landlord is puzzled what to do for the best. This new rent strike or grève des loyers as it is called is one of the methods advocated by the recently-formed syndicate of lodgers. On the other hand, landlords find it necessary to protect themselves against undesirable tenants.

A SOCIALIST'S UTOPIA.

M. Jaurès, the well-known French Socialist leader, holds strange views as to the way he would like to see his country governed. In the course of his famous polemic with M. Clemenceau some four years ago, M. Jaurès undertook to publish his scheme for the society of the future. The first instalment has made its appearance in the shape of a Bill which M. Jaurès has just laid before the Chamber of Députés. It deals with the Army. In the preamble—a formidable document covering nearly 700 pages—is set forth the "Socialist organization of France." M. Jaurès has constantly urged that a national militia should be substituted for the permanent army. He would maintain recruiting, while reducing the duration of military service to six months. In his opinion it is the reserve and not the standing army which should be the real force—the active army. M. Jaurès, who bases his system on that of the Swiss Government, would militarize the whole nation, and turn the schoolboy of the future into a trained soldier. He would also have all the arms and munitions of war stored at the local military centres.

A HORSE MUSEUM.

Saumur is a very important town of France, where young officers are sent to be taught riding. It has now been decided to turn the old chateau of Saumur into a Museum of Horses, where everything which pertains to the equine race will be brought together, paintings, sculptures, harnesses of various periods, and ethnological works. Even the "wooden horse of Troy"—the most famous of horses, which was not a horse at all—will find its place in the "Musée du Cheval." Anyone connected with horses, or having a passion for the noble steed, will be wanting when completed.

PUBLIC CHARITY BOARD.

"L'Assistance Publique," or Public Charity Board, which is responsible for all measures of poor relief in Paris, has suffered seriously from the recent increase in the price of all the necessities of life. Solely owing to this cause, its budget increased by about £100,000 between 1905 and 1910, the rise has continued ever since. How this further increase will affect the budget is not known in its entirety, but in certain details it may already be estimated.

NEW ARMY UNIFORM.

The new uniform for the French Army has been definitely adopted, and the papers declare the transformation will be so considerable that it will amount to an entirely new Army being presented to the nation. The new uniform is pronounced by competent judges to leave nothing to be desired. The colour is a clear greyish green, and will be common to all arms, the distinction being made by the colours of the facings, shoulder straps, &c. Officers will wear the same materials as the men, and their sword will be replaced by one of entirely different model, short and somewhat similar to that in vogue under the First Empire.

THE BEAUTY SPECIALIST.

A new departure in developing the art of restoring freshness to faded cheeks may now be witnessed in Paris. A beauty specialist in the fashionable Rue de Castiglione has hit upon a novel device. In the shop window may be seen a woman of about 40 years of age. She sits there motionless while the crowd outside contemplates her with an amused interest. Prospective patrons are invited to follow the phases of the treatment and convince themselves of the truth.

TEAGEDY ON A STEAMER.

DISAPPEARANCE OF A SHANGHAI LADY.

A very sad affair occurred on the N.Y.K. s.s. "Tambu Maru" on her way across from Shanghai, says the Kobe Herald of May 5. Amongst the passengers who embarked at Shanghai were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sneed and family, consisting of two grown-up daughters and two sons. The steamer left Shanghai at 11 a.m. on Sunday, and all went well until some time shortly before midnight. The family attracted the notice of their fellow-passengers because they were so happy together. During the evening the younger people were singing together in the social hall, little dreaming what a tragic affair was even then throwing a shadow over their lives. Mr. and Mrs. Sneed and their daughters retired to rest at the usual hour, the parents occupying a state room on the promenade deck, while the daughters had a cabin a little distance away. At about midnight, when the ship was 155 miles from Shanghai, Mrs. Sneed was missed. The ship was searched, but no trace of the unfortunate lady could be found, and it is supposed that she slipped on deck and fell overboard. The only clue to her disappearance is that she was walking in her sleep and fell over the gangway, which, it was understood from passengers, had not been properly closed, the gangway itself not having been hauled up and lashed against the bulwarks. It had merely been hauled up clear of the water. The fact that Mrs. Sneed had absolutely disappeared was only made positive at 3.30 on Monday morning, when, of course, nothing could be done. Some of the passengers to whom Mrs. Sneed had spoken of her anxiety about her daughter, take the view that she left her cabin to satisfy herself that the daughters were safe and in comfort, and fell over the partially closed gangway.

Whatever may be the actual explanation of this deplorable affair, it seems quite certain that the tragedy was the result of an accident. Mr. Sneed is connected with the British-American Tobacco Company. The deepest sympathy is felt by everyone for the bereaved husband and children. Mr. Sneed and his family are on their way to Seattle and New York.

PROF. SAINTSBURY AND THE BIBLE.

The Gloucester Herald, which has been devoting much space to the tenacity of the Authorized Version of the Bible, and has published a fine article by Professor Saintsbury on the influence of the Authorized Version on English literature, says—

"Part of the reason of the extraordinary success of the Authorized Version, and of its unparalleled literary influence," he says, "is the way in which the translators have (unconsciously, no doubt) followed the secular course of the language and the literatures as wholes, in sucking into themselves, building themselves up out of the most diverse materials. They added a good deal, an immense deal, to English prose."

"The Stuart period, from the first James to Anne, was one long Donnybrook Fair in political, ecclesiastical, and other matters, and the height of the diversion has been kept up fairly ever since in controversy about its doings. But one thing can be said safely, that never has the country seen a hundred years in which production of literature and interest in literature were more widely diffused among the upper and better educated classes. And such literature as the English Authorized Version could not fail to catch the ear of such a time."

"AN ASTOUNDING FINISH."

"Only those who, as was said above, have combined some study of its immediate antecedents with a wider one of the history of English pro-literature can appreciate, though all who have any ear must feel, the extraordinary felicity of its phrase and movement."

"It has been comical to attribute the discovery of the indefinable but once recognizable Biblical cadence to Tyndale; and it may be fairly granted that he was certainly the first to 'glimpse the panther,' which is the less surprising in that he was actually the first man of literary talent to apply a tolerably accomplished stage of English to the particular text and task. But neither in him (indeed he does not seem to have had time to attempt the greatest books) nor in any follower or set of followers, will be found anything like the astounding finish, felicity, and variety of the Authorized Version in dealing with matter like the Days of Creation, and the Exit of Israel, with Job and Ecclesiastes and the great passages at the beginning and end of Isaiah, with the visions of Ezekiel and the preaching of Amos with the narrative quality of the Gospels and Acts, with the more purple passages of the Epistles, and with the blues of sunset and eclipses that colour the Book of Revelation.

"Nor, great as is surely Elizabethan prose, will anything similar or second be found in it."

"There are passages in Donne and Grovile and Raleigh of higher excellence still, but it is by no means certain that most of these were not written later than the A.V. And though the beauty of earlier English prose has been too little recognised, it would on the whole be idle to expect, before the actual period of the Version, such accomplishment as this. It was impossible that it should come before; it was quite impossible that it should fail to diffuse its strong contagion on good wits when it came."

SOAKED IN THE BIBLE.

"And it did not fail. That Milton should be full of Biblical phrases may seem not to go for much, because his subjects, after his early poems, are almost entirely Biblical or connected with ecclesiastical controversy. Jeremy Taylor is a divine, and quotes and paraphrases the Version. Bunyan, though it is very doubtful whether his study was so exclusively Biblical as has been thought, is equally a specialist. But a moment's thought will show that those assignments of cause are quite beside the question. Here we have, as a matter of fact, the greatest poet, the greatest orator, and the most popular writer for the lower classes, soaked in this book, adapting their phrase to it, and to their phrasal undergoing, continuing, transmitting its influence at second hand, while it maintains itself at first."

Professor Saintsbury continues his analysis of literature to our day. From Carlyle he says: "You could not eliminate the Biblical element without destroying the substance of style, and thought alike." And Swinburne "made perhaps the most direct, abundant, and felicitous use of the phrase of our Version that English literature has seen." "Here," concludes the Professor, "are the best words of the best period of English in the best order. It would have been singular if the best writers had not taken advantage of them, and they have."

GREAT BRITAIN'S FISCAL SYSTEM.

ROYAL COMMISSION SUGGESTED.

The fiscal system of the United Kingdom was the principal topic for discussion at a recent meeting of the Association of Chambers of Commerce, in conference in London.

A resolution on the subject was moved by Mr. Bolton, of Hull. This declared that having regard to the conflicting opinions of commercial men on the desirability of an alteration in our fiscal system, it was advisable that the Government be urged to appoint the strongest possible Royal Commission to inquire into the whole question, and thus lift consideration of the question above party politics.

Mr. Bolton remarked that everybody knew the injury caused by foreign tariffs to our trade and employment. Instead of wasting their time year after year in discussing this question, they ask that the matter should be referred to a Royal Commission.

Mr. Wardle (Leeds) seconded. He said that in the last year we had had four additional countries raising their tariff against us. What terms could we make with a country which knew that under no circumstances should we retaliate? Our position, in fact, gave us no power of effective negotiation. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Algernon Frith (Halifax) argued that no useful result would be arrived at by debating the fiscal question at the present time. They knew that no resolution they arrived at would alter the attitude of the Government.

Sir Felix Schuster said men could be found who would go into the subject in a spirit divested of politics, which ought not to enter into a matter of such supreme importance. (Cheers.)

Mr. Stobie (Nottingham), as an "old war horse" on this subject, supported the resolution.

Mr. Usher (Dublin) spoke in favour of an alteration in the fiscal policy, and referred to the speech of King George, when Prince of Wales, on "Wake up, England."

The President—You must not bring the Monarch into the controversy.

The resolution was put, and carried unanimously.

RECIPROCAL TRADING.

Mr. Barber (Belfast) moved a resolution requesting the Government to give far greater consideration to the proposals for reciprocal trading within the Empire at the coming Colonial Conference, and thus conduce to the unity of the Empire and to the prosperity of its trading, manufacturing, and agricultural interests.

He said that we had no desire to hamper Canada in endeavouring to secure the freest possible access to America for her natural produce, but it was our duty to watch the effect of any such relations on our trade not only with our Colonies, but with other parts of the world. Hear, hear.

Mr. Elmore Parkes, M.P., in seconding said nobody would deny that this Canadian arrangement with America would be detrimental to British trade, especially with manufactured goods. Then, he added, "there is behind that the question of annexation. (Hear, hear, and dissent.) I know there is a feeling amongst Englishmen against anything of the kind, but those who have read the papers carefully will see that there has been an expression of opinion on the part of unofficial people in the United States who believe the ultimate result will be the annexation of Canada by the United States." (Cheers and cries of "No!" "No!")

THE FREE TRADE STANDPOINT.

Sir Joseph Walton, M.P., said he would be sorry if it were thought that British Chambers of Commerce did not welcome, rather than oppose, the opening of another great free market in the United States for the natural product of Canada. Many people who were well informed on the subject were not alarmed at the prospect before our trade. He believed it would result in an increased demand for our manufacturers, which would go up by leaps and bounds.

Mr. Cormac (Edinburgh) supported the resolution, and hoped there would be no balking, baulking, and barring of the door.

Mr. Bennett (Warrington)—My idea is that we may pay to the Government till we are black in the face, and it will be all the same (laughed). Never before has a Government treated a great question with so much levity as the present Government has done. While we are waiting our Empire is slipping away from us. ("No, no, and Hear, hear.") When we had lost Canada and other colonies, then we should realize what fools we had been.

The proposition was carried by a large majority.
